AN APPEAL TO FARMERS.

Fate of Nation Rests Largely on Increased Food Supply.

President Wilson in his proclamation to the people appeals to farmers to do all in their power to increase the supply of foods. He says:

I take the liberty, therefore, of addressing this word to the farmers of the country and to all who work on the EXPERIENCE AND EFFICIENCY COUNT IN ALL BUSINESS. farms: The supreme need of our own nation and of the nations with which we are co-operating is an abundance of supplies and especially of foodstuffs. The importance of an adequate food supply, especially for the present year, is superlative. Without abundant food alike for the armies and the peoples now at war the whole great enterprise upon which we have embarked will break down and fail. The world's food present emergency, but for some time after peace shall have come, both our own people and a large proportion of the people of Europe must rely upon the harvests in America.

Upon the farmers of this country, therefore, in large measure rest the for your money, fate of the war and the fate of the nations. May the nation not count upon them to omit no step that will increase the production of their land or that will bring about the most ef fectual co-operation in the sale and dis tribution of their products? The time is short. It is of the most imperative importance that everything possible be done, and done immediately, to make sure of large barvests. I call upon young men and old alike and upon the ablebodied boys of the land to accept and act upon this duty-to turn in hosts to the farms and make certain that no pains and no labor is lacking

I particularly appeal to the farmers of the south to plant abundant foodstuffs as well as cotton. They can show their patriotism in no better or more convincing way than by resisting the great temptation of the present price of cotton and helping, helping upon a great scale, to feed the nation and the peoples everywhere who are fighting for their liberties and for our The variety of their crops will be the visible measure of their compre-hension of their national duty. The government of the United States and the governments of the several states stand ready to co-operate. They will do everything possible to assist farmers in securing an adequate suply of seed, an adequate force of la borers when they are most needed, at harvest time, and the means of excrops themselves when harvested. The course of trade shall be as unhampered 13 it is possible to make it, and there shall be no unwarranted manipulation of the nation's food supply by those who handle it on its way to the con sumer. This is our opportunity to dem onstrate the efficiency of a great de-mogracy, and we shall not fall short of it.

FOR BETTER DAIRY SIRES.

Bankers Aid Wisconsin Farmers to Se -cure Pure Bred Bulls.

In some sections the problem of uring good sires is a serious one, says a Wisconsin farm bulletin. Often bull clubs are formed by the farmers themelves, who combine their purchasing power to get the services of good sires co-operatively. In other communities bankers, merchants and creamery owners furnish funds on long time notes, making very satisfactory ar-rangements for their payment at the of a two year period. leasing sires, whereby a part of the money received from each farmer for service fees is used to pay the cost of bulls, is in use in several Wisconsin communities.

The plans described here have all been worked out. They are practical There are undoubtedly many other suc cessful ones. If your community could be benefited by a similar plan start it yourself. Don't wait for the business men to make the first step. Live stoc raising is the biggest business in Wisconsin. Many country bankers realize it, and they will meet you half way for they see the importance of profit producing farm animals in the proper levelopment of their communities. Here are a few suggestions about

First .- In buying a bull, get as good a one as you can afford. The sire, if a good pure bred, is more than half the Second.-If possible buy from breeder whom you know.

Third.-Be sure you get stock from disease free herds. Fourth.-Do not expect to buy good cows cheap. The poorest cows are those that are for sale in most herds. Fifth.-Your best investment is to get beifers which have not freshened, but which have been bred to a registered sire of the same breed.

Sixth.—Buy as near home as possible. You save expenses, and if animals are not satisfactory your chances for redress are much better.

Why reduced prices on clothes when Woolens are on the rise? "The Story in a Nut Shell"

You've probally heard that woolen pieces are advancing, so you naturally ask--If that is so, how can these stylish all-wool clothes be sold for less than regular prices? Each year at the end of the regular selling seasons we find a number of garments still on hand; they were bought to sell during that season, so we make it a point of selling them in order to make room for new goods, and we reduce prices to clean these suits in a hurry.

Because Woolens are advancing so rapidly these clothes are worth more now than they were a few months ago; they'll be worth more next year—but we can't hold them over. Following our iron-clad rule of not carrying goods from one season to unother, we are going to close them out at the following cut prices:

MANY TEACHERS NEEDED TO HELP ILLITERATE MEN

Mrs. Cora Witson Stewart Calls For Volunteers to Instruct Soldiers

Frankfort, Ky., July 14.—A call for volunteers to teach the 30,000 illiterate men among those registered in Kentucky for military service was issued Friday by Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, chairman of the Kentucky Illiteracy Commission. The moonlight schools to teach those who may become soldiers will commence late. 22

Mrs. Stewart, addressing the teachers of the State particularly, said in part:

"An unusual situation confronts those engaged in teaching in this State. It is one which will put to the test your patriotism and your devotion to education as well.

"Some 30,000 young menin Kentucky signed their registration cards on June 5 by mark, being unable to sign their names. These are not confined to any tocality, but are scattered throughout every county in the State. They are not negroes, but mainly white.

"These figures must stagger every thoughtful Kentuckian. They would shame us to the point of concealment but for the need of these young men for immediate relief. Concealment works no cure. Only prompt and decisive action can do that. These young men are not to blame for their misfortune. The enlightened citizens of Kentucky, who have tolerated tax compulsory attendance laws and have submitted to the nonenforcement of such school attendance laws as are on our statute books, are mostly to blame. But this is not time to waste in crying shame or in fixing blame. This is a time to atone in such measure as we may.

"It is the duty of every public school teacher in Kentucky to volunteer. Some already have done so on the mere suggestion of such a cail. Some leven who are not teachers have volunteered It is a high privilege to render to these unfortunate ones and to our State and nation this service.

We may have been unable to invest in Liberty Loan bonds. It may not be ours to follow the boys to France to minister to them under the Red Cross, but we can add to their comfort, their self-respect and their efficiency by giving them this training before they go.

"Let the lights burn for the soldier boys on the evening of July 23 in every rural village and city schoolhouse in the State. Write or wire that you will volunteer and let us provide you with books and plans."

Hopeless.

Economy may be practiced constantly, but no one ever seems to become expert in it.

POINTS ABOUT LEGUMES.

Inoculation of Soil Often Necessary to Get a Good Stand of Clover.

[Prepared by United States department of

One fundamental characteristic of a leguminous crop is the presence on the roots of nodules or tubercles which are infested by bacteria. These bacteria are essential both to the successful growth of the plant and to its value as a feed and as a green manure crop. They enter the plant from the soil, and it is obvious therefore that if the soil does not contain them in the first place the crop will prove a failure.

If a leguminous crop is grown for the first time in a field it is probable that nodule forming material of the right kind will not be present. They must be supplied therefore by artificial means. This process is called inoculating the soil.

One practical and effective method of inoculation is to transport soil from a field where it is known that the needed bacteria exists. Soil from fields of alfalfa, sweet clover and bur clover will inoculate a field for any of these three crops. Soil from red alsike, crimson and white clover is also interchangeable, and this is true, too, of the vetches and field peas. Cowpeas and soy beans, however, each require their own particular brand of bacteria.

Soil intended for the purpose of in-oculation should be free from obnoxious weeds. It should be taken from the first five or six inches of the surface and spread at the rate of 200 to 400 pounds per acre on the field to be inoculated. As the bacteria are killed by strong sunlight, the transported soil should be spread in cloudy weather, early morning or late afternoon, and harrowed soon after. Where inoculating soil is scarce it is possible o save in its use by the adoption of what is known as the glue method. A thin mixture of chipped glue and water is sprinkled over the seed at the rate of about a quart of the liquid to a bushel Then a sufficient quantity of dry, in oculated soil is mixed with the seed to make it dry enough to sow well. In this way the seed is coated with inoculated soil and carries this soil with it when it is placed in the field.

still another method is inoculation by means of liquid cultures. A limited supply of these may be secured free upon application to the United States department of agriculture. Many of the state experiment stations also supply these cultures. Commercial firms also sell them. Directions for the use of these cultures accompany all shipments.

We are authorized to announce John S. Ham, a candidate for the nomination for Magistrate for . district No. 3, subject to the action of the Democratic primary to be held August 4th 1917.

Foretold by many portents and all the tongues of rumor, the fall of the German Chancellor is at length announced. Definite knowlege of the peace party because of his too insistent clamor for unrestricted war. Probability points quite the other way, says The New York Times.

Twice in the last week the Emperor has summoned Hindenburg and Ludendorff to Berlin for conferences at which the Crown Prince was present. If Bethmann had been advising his Imperial master that peace now was the only way of escape from utter ruin for Germany, the Kaiser would naturally turn to his Generals for counsel. As to what Hindenburg and Ludendorff and that son of Mars, the Crown Prince, would say to him, we need have no doubt. His temperament and all his training would incline William II. to accept their assurances, their advice. And then the Chancellor would have no choice but to give up office.

With this theory the reports of urgent appeals from Vienna in Bethmann's behalf are in entire harmony, for it is plain that peace cannot come too soon for Austria's need, and the Vatican has evidently seconded her efforts to that end, as the attitude of the Catholic Centre Party in the Reichstag makes clear. But whatever the reason for the Chancellor's resignation, it tells us unmistakably that the Empire has come upon evil days within and with-

We are authorized to announce the withdrawal of Mr. J. O. Bogie from the race for the Democratic nomination for County Court Clerk. This will come as a surprise and beside will be regreted by a number of friends of Mr. Bogie throughout the county. While he gave no reasons we presume that his duties as Road Supervisor in the western part of the state prevents him from making the active canvass he would like to have made, hence his withdrawal at this time. The withdrawal of Mr. Bogie leaves three in the race for this important office, Messrs Jeptha Onstott, Bruce Lawson and W. A. Doty.

CANNERY READY TO OPEN

The cannery to be operated under the the supervision of Homer Tinsley will be opened in this city just as soon as a NEW AMERICAN room suitable for the plant can be arranged. Mr Tinsley tells us that he can and will can everything from a tomato to a dogs tail and that it behooves the people of the county to cooperate with him and the county agent to see that nothing in the eating line perishes for lack of canning. All these things will be high next winter and in great demand. Due notice will be given the public just as soon as the outfit has been enstalled. Seven thous and cans have been ordered and are expected in this week.

ANTI-HOG CHOLERA.

The anti-hog cholera meetings held inder the auspices of our county agent Mr W. H. Rogers throughout the county during the past week has been attracting unusual audiences at each meeting and the people are becoming very much enthused over the prospect of entirely eliminating that dreaded malady from the swine herds of the. county. In tact Mr. Rogers informs us that even now the disease is practically checked and with the co-operation of the swine breeders, in a few years that hog cholera will be a thing of the past. Meetings were held dur. nounced. Definite knowlege of the cause of his resignation is lacking.

WEDDING FESTIVITIES FOR POPULAR BRIDE.

Lancaster has been quite gay the past week on account of the popularity of the young bride-elect, Miss Edna Kavanaugh. The first of the pre-nuptial entertainments was a luncheon given at the home of the bride; when the most intimate friends and relatives were asked to meet the "young south- 1t-pd. erner", Mr. Herbert Ellis, who had come to claim the heart and hand of one of Lancaster's fairest girls. This turned to Haselden Brothers. delightful six course luncheon was a pleasing fore-runner of what was to follow. Mrs. George Robinson next entertained at a six o'clock dinner, the menu was both elaborate and delightful, the color scheme, white and green, was carried out in house and table decorations and menu.

Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Richard Buckner Spindle, entertained in honor York City, where she will visit her of Miss Kavanaugh at the home of her well appointed afternoon reception. cloth Numerous friends called during the last. hours to shower best wishes and congratulations upon the happy bride-elect. Delightful refreshments of brick cream and sherbert, individual ices, mints and frappe were served the guests.

Monday evening Miss Tommie Frances entertained informally the intimate friends and relatives to meet the bride and groom elect.

On Tuesday morning Mr. and Mrs. William Burton were hosts at an elewas beautiful in all its appointments. The centerpiece consisted of a French basket filled with pink and lavendar sweet peas, the handle being tied with The individual heart-shaped ices of 6.28-3t. lavendar and pink, the cakes and mints all brought out the pretty color scheme. The fourteen who were seated at the festive board were; Miss Edna Kavanaugh, Mr. Herbert Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. William Burton, Miss Martha Kavanaugh, Mr. John Gill Kinnaird, Miss Annie Margaret Elkin, Mr. Shirley the Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. Green Clay Walker, Mrs. Geo. Robinson, Mr. J. Y. Robinson, Mrs. R. B. Spindle, Mr. Alex Doty, Mr. Joe Price, Mr. William Kavanaugh.

After the wedding breakfast most of the guests left by motor cars with the happy couple for Lexington, where they were married at 5 o'clock in the parlors of the Phoenix Hotel. After congratulations and best wishes by those who had accompanied them they boarded an eastern bound train for Washington D. C. and other points east. The departure of no one who nas ever left Lancaster is more regretted than that of Miss Edna. Always bright and vivacious, and possessing the womanly charms to make and hold friends made her deservedly popular.

Being compelled to be away from home on business and having only two in family, for their convenience, I have concluded to move to my smaller place nearer town, thereby deciding to sell my Suburban Home "GLEN GABLES" where I now live on Lexington street in the city of Lancaster, Ky. I will offer for sale, on the premises, to the highest bidder at 3 o'clock P. M. the said property containing about eight acaes of rich land, all in grass except garden and orchard. Five hundred feet of this property is fronting on Lexington street and is capable of subdivision in building lots, fronting east. This part of town is building up rapidly, four new houses having been erected during the past year beyond this property and two more new ones are under construction.

The house on this property, with large shady lawn in front, away from dust and noise, is 24 story's high and contains 11 rooms, hall two porches, and cellar and is considered one of the best built and arranged storm sheeted frame houses in Garrard county. It is easily heated, being warm in winter and cool in summer.

On this property is a servant house in back yard; a good stable with box stalls and wagon shed attached; a never failing bearing apple orchard and spring house. It is one of the best watered places for its size in the state. It has two cisterns, one at house and one large one at stable and a good pond in corner of pasture, fed by a spring that has never been known to go dry, and beside all this, which is unnecessary, I have city water for bath room and kitchen.

This property is only a short distance and on the same side of the street as the Lancaster-Graded school and is excellently located for small children going to and from school.

RID SHEEP OF WORMS.

Method of Eradication Advised by Ohle Experiment Station.
Sheepmen having flocks infested with etomach worms and tapeworms may free the animals of such pests by treatment before turning out to spring pasture. For this purpose a drench of copper sulphate has been found most satisfactory in the flocks at the Ohio experiment station.

Two fluid ounces of a solution made by_dissolving an ounce of copper sulphate (blue vitrioi) in two quarts of water is sufficient for a yearling, and a two-year-old sheep needs three fluid ounces. A long necked bottle or a rub-ber tube and funnel may be used to give the dose. Most effective results follow when the sheep are fasted for a day both before and after treatment. Water should not be given for a few hours preceding and following the dos-

Digestive disturbances, poor appetite, loss of flesh and general weakness indi-cate the presence of worms. Lambs are most seriously affected, the experts say. Ridding the sheep of worms in the spring will result in fewer losses in the lamb crop.

CORN GROWING UNDER IRRIGATION METHODS

[Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

The greatest natural limitation to corn growing under trrigation in many semiarid sections are short growing seasons and extreme differences between day and night temperatures These effects may be partially over-come by growing early maturing and adapted varieties, but it is not to be expected that as large yields can be se-cured as are possible in sections where the seasons are long and temperatures more uniform.

Many failures, however, are due to preventable causes. The most common mistakes are overirrigation, too frequent irrigations, too early irrigation

Corn cut away to show a baked and cracked soil. This land should have been cultivated after irriga-tion as soon as the ground could be worked.

and too little cultivation. The farmer who has been accustomed to regard a shortage of moisture as the chief concludes that of crop failure too often concludes that irrigation will cure all ills and insure farge yields.

When the surface soil is kept wet the temperatures are lowered by rapid evaporation, and the result is slower growth and delayed maturity. If culti- ing, and this small and refined woman vation be delayed until the surface soil begins to bake and crack, roots are ex. farmers and consumers by doing a posed and cultivation may then be very Small corn plants do not require a large moisture supply. Early irrigations stimulate an excessive growth of talk. The large, sappy stalks usually do not produce as much grain as those normally developed and are less likely to reach maturity before fall frosts

On land that is well cultivated and kept free from weeds it is usually unnecessary to irrigate corn until about the time the tassels and sliks begin to appear. A good supply of water is needed at this time, and irrigations are of much benefit to the plants in produc ing and developing ears. These irrigations should be thorough and followed as soon as possible by cultivation.

Irrigating in furrows or shallow ditches between the corn rows is better than flooding the whole surface and allowing the water to come in contact with the cornstalks.

The number of irrigations necessary depends upon the type of soil and the amount of moisture supplied by rain. On average loam soils two or three irrigations are usually sufficient. irrigations delay maturity.

Exercise For Ewes.

The more exercise the ewe gets the healthier and stronger the lambs are likely to be. The ewes will also deliver their lambs more easily. Some men advocate hauling the roughage for the ewes to the field and spreading it about in small bunches. The ewes will then obtain exercise by running about from place to place. On wet, rainy or stormy days they should be left in the barn, but whenever the weather is at all favorable the ewes should be out of doors for exercise. One should not allow the fleeces of the sheep to get soaking wet in the winter time.

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

Success in farming depends on selling ability to a greater extent than ever before.

In earlier days there was a lack of selling opportunity, but times have changed for the better. The parcel post, adequate railroad service and the rapid growth of towns give farmers their chance. With prices on their present high level it does not require a large farm to return a living income a large farm to return a fiving income and something more.

Good selling simply means obtaining the greater part of the money paid by consumers. It is only fair that farmers, who invest in the land, take all the risk and perform most of the labor, should receive the major part of the money involved. The closer they get to the consumers the more certain they are to secure their proper proportion of the cash paid for commodities. In nearly all farming communities are a few men who stand out promi-nently by reason of their success in marketing their products. Others of equal industry and skill in producing crops fall far behind in the matter of money compensation. Dealing with private customers and obtaining retail prices or co-operation with a sufficient number of neighbors so that both shipping and selling may be properly man-aged will lift many farmers out of the

PARMERS SELLING DIRECT TO CONSUMERS

For myself, I have made a success of direct selling to private families. In this way I dispose of the output of a dairy of twelve cows, besides poultry products and some fruit, vegetables, hopey and flowers. These supplies go readily at full retail prices in a town two miles from the farm. I have a few customers in one of the larger cities who are served by parcel post or express. I know from the inquiries received that I could just as easily sell ten times as much produce. Many farmers do not make this effort.

As showing the demand for fresh country produce, I am acquainted with two women in different localities who buy up eggs, poultry, butter, fruit, etc., and deliver direct to city families, each using a horse and wagon for the pur-pose. One of these women went into the country upon a farm when her husband's health gave out and probably had the wisdom to see that as a "back to the lander" she did not have the strength or the weight to pound a living out of the soil. There are dif-ferent ways, however, of making a livsaw an opportunity to benefit produce business. She drives about through the country picking up poultry products and light high grade material and then takes them to town. where she sells out to good advantage

The farmers are all pleased to deal with her. She seems to be popular all along the way. Before she left tow: she was a stenographer, and her pound ing the keys of her machine has evidently taught her how to touch the keys of human nature so as to produce a good impression. This woman is doing well at her business, and she has certainly set us all an example of how to develop a good trade in a new way and in a new section. There is more direct than there ever will be in producing larger crops.

In several other cases I know of farmers who have developed bustnesses of this kind from coming in contact with a growing list of customers who required more stuff than one place could produce. Everything points to the fact that American farmers are face to face with a great opportunity for advancement. Business principles should be introduced into farming for efficiency, with results beneficial both to producer and consumer. Farmers in particular communities should develop staple products, stand-ardize them and study what market to reach at a given time and the best method of shipping.

DUCKS IN HOT WEATHER.

Young Quacks Thrive During Months of July and August.

Late chickens are usually stunted by hot weather. But have the farm wo-men tried raising summer ducks? Strange as it may seem, ducklings thrive best in hot weather, and it is during July and August that I hatched my large flocks of Buff ducks, writes Oklahoma woman in the Kansas Farmer.

It is no uncommon sight to see an old Biddy groping blindly around in the dark and trying to follow her Busy of all to dive into its cool depths after crawfish, frogs and water insects, are all year layers, and I always have the best success batching the eggs. I have heard women complain that their ducklings ate too much. Upon being questioned they admit that they fed them at least half a dozen times a and the ducklings just hung around the house waiting for more eed. Such management, indeed, would be profitless, but young ducks, like people, can be trained to be lazy or industrious. They are smart creatures and soon learn when to expect their meals. I always feed them early in the morning and late at night when the chick-foraging among weeds and grass or in the water. Quite often they find so much that I feed them only enough to let them know they have not been forgotten. They certainly convert waste into meat. I know of nothing that grows to maturity more quickly than ducklings. I feed them all the tough lettuce leaves from the garden, as this is one thing that cannot be dried or canned, and young ducks like nothing bet-

GRAINS FOR POULTRY.

Value of the Various Cersals as Meat and Egg Producers.

There is more nutriment in white oats or white middlings than there in the brown kinds. Damaged wheat or screenings full of cockle are dangerous foods, says the Farm Journal. Qatmeal if fed too freely will cause a looseness of the bowels. Millet seed contains considerable flesh forming material. There is more bone and muscle food in barley than there is in wheat. but the fowls seem to prefer the latter. Bran is laxative and should be in the datiy bill of fare for both old and

FEEDING THE HENS.

The idea of feeding garbage to flock of chickens may intrude on the sensibilities of some, says H. A. Rob erts in the Philadelphia Ledger. idea, however, is more apparent than real. We prefer to use the term "table scraps" anyhow since there is a difference between the two. Celery tops and the tops of beets and other vegetables outer leaves of lettuce, vegetable parings, stale bread, ends of meat, left overs of cereals, sour milk and miscelfaneous table scraps are none the lesedible because they are such; they have lost none of their value as food.

Properly fed-and by that we mean fed in a sweet, wholesome condition-there is no better feed in the world for poultry than table scraps. The fact that they are a mixture of odds and gives them their chief virtue which is a balanced diet. Fowls fed on table scraps invariably do better than those given a single grain diet. and the reasons are perfectly obvious. No one article of food will maintain health and vigor. The fowl's system. like the human taste, requires variet;

The illustration shows a good fat-tening chicken and a cull. To the left, a good type of chicken for fat-tening for a broiler; to the right is a poor type.

If there is not variety the appetite be-comes jaded. Finally this means im-paired health, a falling off in produc-

If you would have proof that chickens really reitsh table scraps offer them a plate of carefully assorted tidbits from the kitchen along with the cus-tomary grain ration and note which they devour first. If they do not fight and scramble for the table scraps to the exclusion of the grain it will be the first case of its kind that has come to the attention of the writer. The best way to feed table scraps is to run them through a grander. In this way many articles are utilized which would otherwise be wasted. For example, the tail end of a steak, which consists largely of fat and gristle, cannot be swallowed by the fowls at one operation. If left to their own devices the fowls will peck at it for hours and drag and fuss it around the house or yard until it becomes filthily dirty which is not exactly wholesome. this piece of steak is run through the grinder and reduced to edible lengths it is speedily eaten before it has chance to become soiled or spoiled. The same idea holds true of many other articles. Eggshells may be fed to fowls if they are reduced to a ground condition, whereas it would be thiwise to feed them in the form of shells for fear of starting the habit of egg eating.

A hard and swollen condition of the erop is caused by an obstruction to the outlet from the crop or by gorging large quantities of grain, which swells and ferments. The fowl is droopy; it has a purplish color, and a sour smelling liquid runs from its mouth. Give castor oil or a large dose of olive oil; knead the crop with the fingers until it becomes soft under the effects of the oil and then hold the bird with its head downward and try to empty the contents of the crop.

Provide Shade For Chickens. Do not neglect shade in the chicken yard during the hot, sunny days of summer. It is an act of simple humanity, but is also a source of net gain, since the flock thrives much better if it is so protected, and de not neglect to give fresh, cool water fre-
